

Enhancements at AAO 2019 San Francisco

Here is the latest news about AAO 2019 in San Francisco:

- This year the Academy is enhancing its Scientific ePoster Theater and Lounge. In this expanded space, you can view e-posters on large touch screens, meet presenting authors and hear moderated e-poster discussions led by your colleagues.
- Dr. Emily Y. Chew will give the 76th Edward Jackson Memorial Lecture. A medical retina specialist with extensive experience in designing and implementing clinical trials, Dr. Chew will focus on her clinical and research interests in diabetic eye disease and age-related eye diseases. Her lecture is titled “Age-related Macular Degeneration: Nutrition, Genes and Deep Learning.”

- Need a reason to visit San Francisco? International Trustee-at-Large Dr. Donald Tan gives a few reasons why you should attend AAO 2019 in this 22-second video. As a reminder, the annual meeting registration fee is included with an Academy membership.

In addition, here are some tips to help you plan your trip:

- Check your travel documents and passports to ensure they are up-to-date.
- Use the Academy’s online letter generator to assist with your visitor visa application.
- Read more about tours, museums and restaurants in San Francisco.

Global Video Content – Win the Grand Prize

The Academy is hosting its 5th annual Global Video Contest. All Academy members are invited to participate. Enter your surgical and clinical video today.

Judges are looking for quality and depth of content, level of commentary, originality and educational value. Less than two minutes is preferred. Winning videos will appear on the Academy's ONE® Network, the world's largest collection of ophthalmic knowledge.

Grand Prize: iPad Mini or $350 in Academy Store Credit

Deadline: 2 June 2019

Volunteer Opportunities with the Academy

Serving on an Academy committee, while popular, is not the only way to get involved with the Academy. A new effort is highlighting dozens of ways for Academy members to volunteer outside of committee service.

We are offering many ways to volunteer and work with fellow ophthalmologists to ensure our programs and services support the delivery of the highest quality eye care.

View the volunteer opportunities.

Global Directory of Training Opportunities

Do you know of any young ophthalmologists looking for a fellowship abroad? Have them check out the Academy's Global Directory of Training Opportunities. The directory lists over 2,500 opportunities open to doctors outside the host country. You can search by subspecialty, region, country, focus and financial support available.